

I don't know how much about you but I long to hear your voice I often dream of your hues and what they say by choice My fingers ache to do the walking across the streets that share your views, but I do not have the knack to play you, To me it is indescribable what you do to heart like mine, You make life less unbearable with every note