

“Paul Rand in Context,” a series of April events celebrating his life and legacy, are as follows:

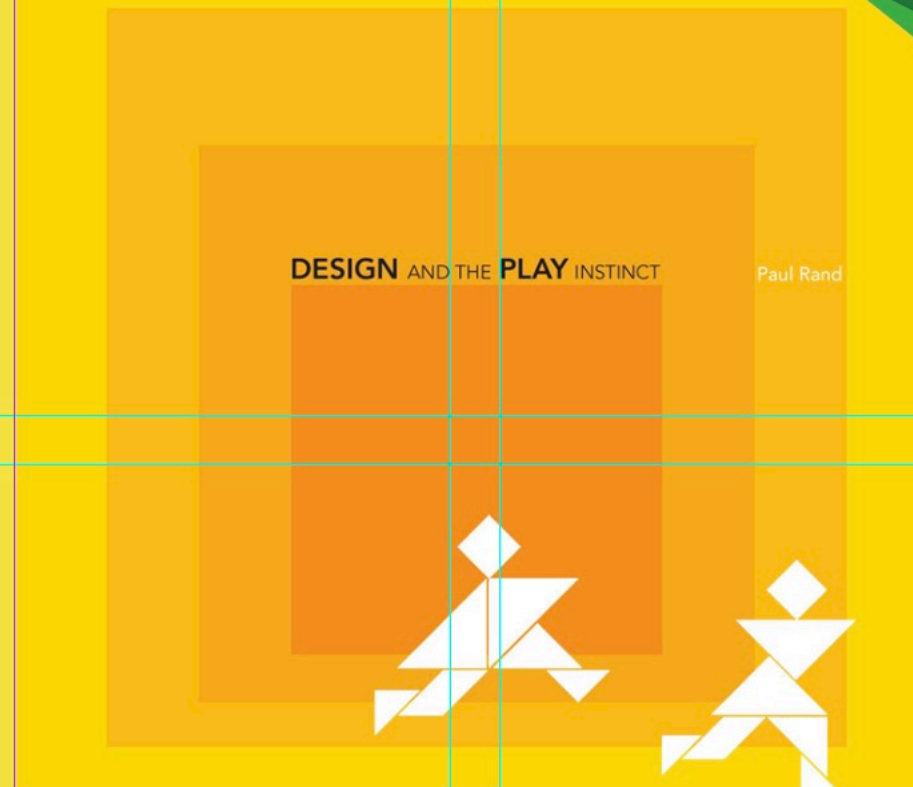

Paul Rand Retrospective, an exhibit of approximately 50 works by Rand, will be on display in CSU, Chico’s Albert E. Warrens Reception Center, Tuesday–Thursday, 2–6 pm (except April 23), and Saturday, noon–4 pm. The exhibit is on loan from Yale.

Designer Kyle Cooper, co-founder of digital media design firm Imaginary Forces and a former student of Rand’s, will speak Friday, April 18, at 8 pm in the BMU Auditorium. (A reception for Cooper will be held prior to his talk from 5:30 to 7:30 pm in the Warrens Reception Center.) Cooper is well known for his design and direction of titles for films such as Seven, Spider-Man, and Mission Impossible.

“Rand in Context,” a gallery talk by Sudick and Armstrong, will be Wednesday, April 9, at 4 pm in the Warrens Reception Center. The idea of context—whether it meant constructing meaning or understanding history—was vital to Rand.

Rand & Play, an exhibition of books designed by CSU, Chico students, will be on display on the second floor of the Meriam Library. The students used the Rand essay “Design and the Play Instinct” as inspiration.
